

PRICE ONE CENT.

LAST EDITION STARFLESS.

John Meyer's Name Freed from
the Brand of an Unjust
Conviction.

Restored to American Citizenship by
Gov. Hill After Full Vindication.

Story of an Innocent Man Who Served
Three Years in Sing Sing.

"The Evening World" Believed His
Story and Fought His Cause.

Confession Made by the Real Criminal
to the Chaplain of Sing Sing.

Papers Signed by the Governor Which
Do Everything Possible to Right the Wrong.

STATE OF NEW YORK,
EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
ALBANY, OCT. 26, 1889.
Sir: I am directed by the Governor to inform you that he has this day granted a restoration
of citizenship to you, and that he has restored to you the full rights of an American citizen.

Very respectfully yours,
WILLIAM W. HILL,
Governor.

John Meyer, ex-convict.
So read the slip of paper in lieu of a card that
was sent to The Evening World office one
gloomy morning last April.

John Meyer was received. He did not look like an ex-convict or like a man who had ever
broken the law.

He was a tall, broad-shouldered young giant,
but with a face as frank and ingenuous as that
of a child.

He walked through THE EVENING WORLD
office with head erect as if in defiance of the world, but with a pleading look in his eyes
that seemed to beseech sympathy.

"What can we do for you?" he was asked.
"Much, I hope. If you can't nobody can,
and I don't care what becomes of me."

"You have been in prison?"
"Yes, three years in Sing Sing and Auburn."
The blonde head lowered slightly, and the blood flushed the cheeks, but only for a moment.
Looking his questioner straight in the eye, he said:

"I was sent to prison for a crime I never committed.
I was the victim of a plot. My employer was robbed. The crime was fastened on me.
I was almost a stranger in this country, and
could not prove my innocence. I was tried and convicted, but I was innocent. I swear it. Do
you believe me?"

The listener had heard similar stories often
before, but in Meyer's eyes he read something
that satisfied him that here at least was a man who was not a criminal. His answer was:
"I believe you. Tell me your story."

MEYER'S STORY RETOLD.
The tale was an extraordinary one. Germany,
twenty-four years ago. His father was the Colonel of a cavalry regiment in the German army then and for a number of years after—in fact until John left home to come to America.
When fifteen years old young Meyer was attending a military academy in Munich with another brother. John did not love the rule of his country. He longed for the freedom of America.

LONGED FOR A FREE COUNTRY.
He longed to come to this country and join the multitude of free men and free women. He wanted to be an American.

His father opposed his wishes. He wanted him
to follow in his footsteps, enter the German
army and fight if necessary for his Emperor.
The youth persisted and finally his father and mother gave their consent for him to go to America. Meyer arrived here in February, 1881.

LANDS. MEYER THIRTY YEARS AGO.
He landed in Baltimore. Young, inexperienced
and with plenty of money, it was not long before he became the victim of a hand of barter, who, under the guise of friendship, had
robbed him and led him into extravagance
until the plentiful supply of money which his father had given him had taken wings and
flown.

THEN HE SET TO WORK.
Nothing daunted, he determined to go to
work.

It had been his intention to enter a military
academy in this country, and for this purpose
he had been saving his money, but when he found that he could not do so, he still intended
to carry out his plan, and he had saved the
amount he had so recklessly flattered away.

HE WAS TOO PROUD TO CALL ON HIS FOLKS
for financial assistance. He did not find it easy to obtain work. At last, in getting a position in Keller
and Son's packing-house at Sixteenth street and Ninth avenue.

After he had been in the same place for a few months, and when Meyer left
he did not meet again for nearly a year.
Meyer had just got a new job with Isaac Acker,

PRICE ONE CENT.

LAST EDITION WIRES TO STAY.

Judge Andrews's Decision Favors
the Electrical Companies.

Temporary Injunctions Against the Subway Board Continued.

Only Slight Modifications Until the Case is Finally Tried.

A Check to Mayor Grant in His Vigorous
Crusade Against the Wires.

Judge Andrews's long looked-for decision in
the case of the temporary injunctions obtained
by the Electric Light Companies against the Mayor and Board of Electrical Control was
handed down this morning.

The decision is in favor of the Electric Light
Companies.

Judge Andrews decides that the injunctions
must be continued under certain modifications,
and the duty of the court companies have practically obtained all they asked for.

His opinion is a very long one, and all the
points in the controversy are discussed in detail.
In the first place he holds that the companies
have a right to maintain the overhead system
and that before their wires are taken down
they must have sufficient notice and be given an opportunity of putting them in repair.

If they do not do so then the wires can be removed.

In the injunction the Mayor and Board of Electrical Control were restrained from removing
any wires whatsoever by virtue of the resolution
which was passed at the meeting early in October or otherwise.

Judge Andrews holds that the Board of Electrical Control has no authority under the law
creating it to take down the wires at all, whether dangerous or not.

This must be done by the Commissioner of Public Works, who can remove them as any other dangerous obstructions in the streets, and
the matter is one which may be brought before
the Grand Jury at once.

This was one of the main points of contention
in the argument before Judge Andrews.

The Corporation Counsel claimed that the authority to take down the wires was vested in the Board of Electrical Control.

Judge Andrews says that it only has the power to make regulations in regard to the maintenance of the wires, and discussed the
question very fully.

Judge Andrews concluded as follows:
Under these circumstances it seems to me that it
is the plain duty of the court to grant the injunction heretofore granted restraining the Commissioner of Public Works from removing the
wires of the electric light companies, and that
unless he shall first give plaintiffs a reasonable opportunity to put in their wires in a safe and sound manner, he cannot be permitted to remove them.

It does not follow that this disposition of the
case would be a very easy matter for the Commissioner
to notify the plaintiff that he is advised by the expert
of the Board that some of the wires are not properly
insulated, specifying the same, and that if the same
are not put in repair within a reasonable time, he
will remove them.

John Joseph Cronin's appearance on the stand
was the other most interesting event of yesterday.

He is the brother of the dead man, and wanted
to make a speech.

However, he was held down to the first purpose
of his appearance, which was to make the identification of the dead body even more complete.

This witness is a farmer in Arkansas, but arrived
in Chicago two days after the body was found.

That the State is relying as well upon small
proofs as upon the testimony of the dead body
shown in an interesting manner at to-day's session.

Cronin has always claimed that when he hired the now famous white horse he got it for a man who wanted to visit a friend in South Carolina.

Had this story been true, when the stranger
returned he would have approached the stable
boy.

Early this morning the following addition
was made to THE WORLD'S LIST:
Barclay street, per J. A. Ferris $1,000
At the Mayor's office the following subscriptions
were received to-day:

John Bodine, 925
Mayor Wm. B. Kirk, of Syracuse, 300
George K. Van Nest, member of the
The Duxbury and Putnam Co., 1,000
Hiram Lynch, 250
N. L. Keen, 250
John L. Baker, 500
H. Hoffmeister, 500
Hill Brothers, 200.00
Hawthorne & Verbeke, Windsor Hotel
an. subscribers to the Guarantee Fund
W. D. Garrison, Manager Grand
Union Hotel, 5,000
E. L. Neff, 5,000
A. L. Ashmun, Sinclair House, 2,000
J. H. Rogers, Coleman House, 2,000
H. H. Brockway, Ashland House, 2,000
James E. Ward & Co., 1,000
Hugh N. Camp, 1,000
A. N. Vantine & Co., 500
Thomas G. Brown & Sons, 1,000
Andrew Macdonald, 500
J. A. Cupples, 500
John A. Riley, 500
St. John, 500
J. A. Newell, 500
Samuel W. Fairchild, who, in the absence of John McKesson in Europe, has been delegated
to solicit subscriptions to the Guarantee Fund
from the drug trade, writes Mayor Grant:
I beg to advise that the largest and wealthiest household in New York City, the firm of the question of a site is decided. These houses are all opposed to the construction of the Central Park, and I think
me that it would be wise for the Committee on Site
to make a decision on the question of whether the site is in the hands of the Central Park or not, and the sooner it is done the better. I think that the fact that the majority of people are not thoroughly acquainted with the conditions of the situation, and that the fact that the Central Park
is an out and out gift to the city, and that the return of the portion may be expected.

Other subscriptions entered to-day were as
follows:
At Dr. Morgan & Co.'s office:
Dr. Morgan & Co., 51,000
At the Consolidated Exchange:
H. H. Smith, 5,000
At the Central City office:
A. H. Flower, 51,000
Henry Seibert, 1,000
At the office of the Mayor's Elly of the New York Stock Exchange, issued a circular to the members, stating that the rol-keeper of the Exchange had been authorized to receive subscriptions for the World's Fair Fund, and saying that
a liberal response to Mayor Grant's appeal in behalf of the most important object was earnestly solicited.

PRICE ONE CENT.

LAST EDITION WIRELESS.

John Meyer's Name Freed from
the Brand of an Unjust
Conviction.

Restored to American Citizenship by
Gov. Hill After Full Vindication.

Story of an Innocent Man Who Served
Three Years in Sing Sing.

"The Evening World" Believed His
Story and Fought His Cause.

Confession Made by the Real Criminal
to the Chaplain of Sing Sing.

Papers Signed by the Governor Which
Do Everything Possible to Right the Wrong.

STATE OF NEW YORK,
EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
ALBANY, OCT. 26, 1889.
Sir: I am directed by the Governor to inform
you that he has this day granted a restoration
of citizenship to you, and that he has
restored to you the full rights of an American citizen.

Very respectfully yours,
WILLIAM W. HILL,
Governor.

John Meyer, ex-convict.
So read the slip of paper in lieu of a card that
was sent to The Evening World office one
gloomy morning last April.

John Meyer was received. He did not look
like an ex-convict or like a man who had ever
broken the law.

He was a tall, broad-shouldered young giant,
but with a face as frank and ingenuous as that
of a child.

He walked through THE EVENING WORLD
office with head erect as if in defiance of the
world, but with a pleading look in his eyes
that seemed to beseech sympathy.

"What can we do for you?" he was asked.
"Much, I hope. If you can't nobody can,
and I don't care what becomes of me."

"You have been in prison?"
"Yes, three years in Sing Sing and Auburn."
The blonde head lowered slightly, and the
blood flushed the cheeks, but only for a moment.
Looking his questioner straight in the eye, he said:

"I was sent to prison for a crime I never committed.
I was the victim of a plot. My employer was robbed. The crime was fastened on me.
I was almost a stranger in this country, and
could not prove my innocence. I was tried and
convicted, but I was innocent. I swear it. Do
you believe me?"

The listener had heard similar stories often
before, but in Meyer's eyes he read something
that satisfied him that here at least was a man
who was not a criminal. His answer was:
"I believe you. Tell me your story."

MEYER'S STORY RETOLD.
The tale was an extraordinary one. Germany,
twenty-four years ago. His father was the Colonel of a cavalry regiment in the German
army then and for a number of years after—in
fact until John left home to come to America.
When fifteen years old young Meyer was
attending a military academy in Munich with another brother. John did not love the rule of his country. He longed for the freedom of America.

LONGED FOR A FREE COUNTRY.
He longed to come to this country and join the multitude of free men and free women. He wanted to be an American.

His father opposed his wishes. He wanted him
to follow in his footsteps, enter the German
army and fight if necessary for his Emperor.
The youth persisted and finally his father and
mother gave their consent for him to go to America. Meyer arrived here in February, 1881.

LANDS. MEYER THIRTY YEARS AGO.
He landed in Baltimore. Young, inexperienced
and with plenty of money, it was not long
before he became the victim of a hand of
barter, who, under the guise of friendship, had
robbed him and led him into extravagance
until the plentiful supply of money which his father had given him had taken wings and
flown.

THEN HE SET TO WORK.
Nothing daunted, he determined to go to
work.

It had been his intention to enter a military
academy in this country, and for this purpose
he had been saving his money, but when he
found that he could not do so, he still intended
to carry out his plan, and he had saved the
amount he had so recklessly flattered away.

HE WAS TOO PROUD TO CALL ON HIS FOLKS
for financial assistance. He did not find it easy to obtain work. At last, in getting a position in Keller
and Son's packing-house at Sixteenth street and Ninth avenue.

After he had been in the same place for
a few months, and when Meyer left
he did not meet again for nearly a year.
Meyer had just got a new job with Isaac Acker,

PRICE ONE CENT.

LAST EDITION WIRES TO STAY.

Judge Andrews's Decision Favors
the Electrical Companies.

Temporary Injunctions Against the
Subway Board Continued.

Only Slight Modifications Until the Case is Finally Tried.

A Check to Mayor Grant in His Vigorous
Crusade Against the Wires.

Judge Andrews's long looked-for decision in
the case of the temporary injunctions obtained
by the Electric Light Companies against the Mayor and Board of Electrical Control was
handed down this morning.

The decision is in favor of the Electric Light
Companies.

Judge Andrews decides that the injunctions
must be continued under certain modifications,
and the duty of the court companies have
practically obtained all they asked for.

His opinion is a very long one, and all the
points in the controversy are discussed in detail.
In the first place he holds that the companies
have a right to maintain the overhead system
and that before their wires are taken down
they must have sufficient notice and be given an opportunity of putting them in
repair.

If they do not do so then the wires can be
removed.

In the injunction the Mayor and Board of Electrical Control were restrained from removing
any wires whatsoever by virtue of the resolution
which was passed at the meeting early in October or otherwise.

Judge Andrews holds that the Board of Electrical Control has no authority under the law
creating it to take down the wires at all, whether
dangerous or not.

This must be done by the Commissioner of Public Works, who can remove them as any
other dangerous obstructions in the streets, and
the matter is one which may be brought before
the Grand Jury at once.

This was one of the main points of contention
in the argument before Judge Andrews.

The Corporation Counsel claimed that the authority to take down the wires was vested in the Board of Electrical Control.

Judge Andrews says that it only has the power to make regulations in regard to the maintenance of the wires, and discussed the
question very fully.

Judge Andrews concluded as follows:
Under these circumstances it seems to me that it
is the plain duty of the court to grant the
injunction heretofore granted restraining the Commissioner of Public Works from removing the
wires of the electric light companies, and that
unless he shall first give plaintiffs a reasonable
opportunity to put in their wires in a safe and sound manner, he cannot be permitted to remove
them.

It does not follow that this disposition of the
case would be a very easy matter for the Commissioner
to notify the plaintiff that he is advised by the expert
of the Board that some of the wires are not properly
insulated, specifying the same, and that if the same
are not put in repair within a reasonable time, he
will remove them.

John Joseph Cronin's appearance on the stand
was the other most interesting event of yesterday.

He is the brother of the dead man, and wanted
to make a speech.

However, he was held down to the first purpose
of his appearance, which was to make the
identification of the dead body even more complete.

This witness is a farmer in Arkansas, but arrived
in Chicago two days after the body was
found.

That the State is relying as well upon small
proofs as upon the testimony of the dead body
shown in an interesting manner at to-day's session.

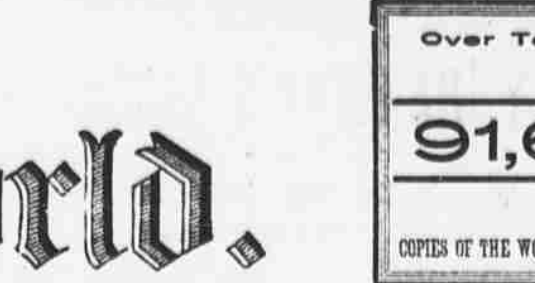

Cronin has always claimed that when he
hired the now famous white horse he got it for
a man who wanted to visit a friend in South Carolina.

Had this story been true, when the stranger
returned he would have approached the stable
boy.

Early this morning the following addition
was made to THE WORLD'S LIST:
Barclay street, per J. A. Ferris $1,000
At the Mayor's office the following subscriptions
were received to-day:

John Bodine, 925
Mayor Wm. B. Kirk, of Syracuse, 300
George K. Van Nest, member of the
The Duxbury and Putnam Co., 1,000
Hiram Lynch, 250
N. L. Keen, 250
John L. Baker, 500
H. Hoffmeister, 500
Hill Brothers, 200.00
Hawthorne & Verbeke, Windsor Hotel
an. subscribers to the Guarantee Fund
W. D. Garrison, Manager Grand
Union Hotel, 5,000
E. L. Neff, 5,000
A. L. Ashmun, Sinclair House, 2,000
J. H. Rogers, Coleman House, 2,000
H. H. Brockway, Ashland House, 2,000
James E. Ward & Co., 1,000
Hugh N. Camp, 1,000
A. N. Vantine & Co., 500
Thomas G. Brown & Sons, 1,000
Andrew Macdonald, 500
J. A. Cupples, 500
John A. Riley, 500
St. John, 500
J. A. Newell, 500
Samuel W. Fairchild, who, in the absence of John McKesson in Europe, has been delegated
to solicit subscriptions to the Guarantee Fund
from the drug trade, writes Mayor Grant:
I beg to advise that the largest and wealthiest
household in New York City, the firm of
the question of a site is decided. These houses are all opposed
to the construction of the Central Park, and I think
me that it would be wise for the Committee on Site
to make a decision on the question of whether the site is in the hands of the Central Park or not, and
the sooner it is done the better. I think
that the fact that the majority of people are not
thoroughly acquainted with the conditions of the
situation, and that the fact that the Central Park
is an out and out gift to the city, and that the return of the portion may be expected.

Other subscriptions entered to-day were as
follows:
At Dr. Morgan & Co.'s office:
Dr. Morgan & Co., 51,000
At the Consolidated Exchange:
H. H. Smith, 5,000
At the Central City office:
A. H. Flower, 51,000
Henry Seibert, 1,000
At the office of the Mayor's Elly of the New York Stock Exchange, issued a circular to the
members, stating that the rol-keeper of the Exchange had been authorized to receive subscriptions for the World's Fair Fund, and saying that
a liberal response to Mayor Grant's appeal in behalf of the most important object was earnestly solicited.

PRICE ONE CENT.

LAST EDITION WIRES TO STAY.

Judge Andrews's Decision Favors
the Electrical Companies.

Temporary Injunctions Against the
Subway Board Continued.

Only Slight Modifications Until the Case is Finally Tried.

A Check to Mayor Grant in His Vigorous
Crusade Against the Wires.

Judge Andrews's long looked-for decision in
the case of the temporary injunctions obtained
by the Electric Light Companies against the Mayor and Board of Electrical Control was
handed down this morning.

The decision is in favor of the Electric Light
Companies.

Judge Andrews decides that the injunctions
must be continued under certain modifications,
and the duty of the court companies have
practically obtained all they asked for.

His opinion is a very long one, and all the
points in the controversy are discussed in detail.
In the first place he holds that the companies
have a right to maintain the overhead system
and that before their wires are taken down
they must have sufficient notice and be given an opportunity of putting them in
repair.

If they do not do so then the wires can be
removed.

In the injunction the Mayor and Board of Electrical Control were restrained from removing
any wires whatsoever by virtue of the resolution
which was passed at the meeting early in October or otherwise.

Judge Andrews holds that the Board of Electrical Control has no authority under the law
creating it to take down the wires at all, whether
dangerous or not.

This must be done by the Commissioner of Public Works, who can remove them as any
other dangerous obstructions in the streets, and
the matter is one which may be brought before
the Grand Jury at once.

This was one of the main points of contention
in the argument before Judge Andrews.

The Corporation Counsel claimed that the authority to take down the wires was vested in the Board of Electrical Control.

Judge Andrews says that it only has the power to make regulations in regard to the maintenance of the wires, and discussed the
question very fully.

Judge Andrews concluded as follows:
Under these circumstances it seems to me that it
is the plain duty of the court to grant the
injunction heretofore granted restraining the Commissioner of Public Works from removing the
wires of the electric light companies, and that
unless he shall first give plaintiffs a reasonable
opportunity to put in their wires in a safe and sound manner, he cannot be permitted to remove
them.

It does not follow that this disposition of the
case would be a very easy matter for the Commissioner
to notify the plaintiff that he is advised by the expert
of the Board that some of the wires are not properly
insulated, specifying the same, and that if the same
are not put in repair within a reasonable time, he
will remove them.

John Joseph Cronin's appearance on the stand
was the other most interesting event of yesterday.

He is the brother of the dead man, and wanted
to make a speech.

However, he was held down to the first purpose
of his appearance, which was to make the
identification of the dead body even more complete.

This witness is a farmer in Arkansas, but arrived
in Chicago two days after the body was
found.

That the State is relying as well upon small
proofs as upon the testimony of the dead body
shown in an interesting manner at to-day's session.

Cronin has always claimed that when he
hired the now famous white horse he got it for
a man who wanted to visit a friend in South Carolina.

Had this story been true, when the stranger
returned he would have approached the stable
boy.

Early this morning the following addition
was made to THE WORLD'S LIST:
Barclay street, per J. A. Ferris $1,000
At the Mayor's office the following subscriptions
were received to-day:

John Bodine, 925
Mayor Wm. B. Kirk, of Syracuse, 300
George K. Van Nest, member of the
The Duxbury and Putnam Co., 1,000
Hiram Lynch, 250
N. L. Keen, 250
John L. Baker, 500
H. Hoffmeister, 500
Hill Brothers, 200.00
Hawthorne & Verbeke, Windsor Hotel
an. subscribers to the Guarantee Fund
W. D. Garrison, Manager Grand
Union Hotel, 5,000
E. L. Neff, 5,000
A. L. Ashmun, Sinclair House, 2,000
J. H. Rogers, Coleman House, 2,000
H. H. Brockway, Ashland House, 2,000
James E. Ward & Co., 1,000
Hugh N. Camp, 1,000
A. N. Vantine & Co., 500
Thomas G. Brown & Sons, 1,000
Andrew Macdonald, 500
J. A. Cupples, 500
John A. Riley, 500
St. John, 500
J. A. Newell, 500
Samuel W. Fairchild, who, in the absence of John McKesson in Europe, has been delegated
to solicit subscriptions to the Guarantee Fund
from the drug trade, writes Mayor Grant:
I beg to advise that the largest and wealthiest
household in New York City, the firm of
the question of a site is decided. These houses are all opposed
to the construction of the Central Park, and I think
me that it would be wise for the Committee on Site
to make a decision on the question of whether the site is in the hands of the Central Park or not, and
the sooner it is done the better. I think
that the fact that the majority of people are not
thoroughly acquainted with the conditions of the
situation, and that the fact that the Central Park
is an out and out gift to the city, and that the return of the portion may be expected.

Other subscriptions entered to-day were as
follows:
At Dr. Morgan & Co.'s office:
Dr. Morgan & Co., 51,000
At the Consolidated Exchange:
H. H. Smith, 5,000
At the Central City office:
A. H. Flower, 51,000
Henry Seibert, 1,000
At the office of the Mayor's Elly of the New York Stock Exchange, issued a circular to the
members, stating that the rol-keeper of the Exchange had been authorized to receive subscriptions for the World's Fair Fund, and saying that
a liberal response to Mayor Grant's appeal in behalf of the most important object was earnestly solicited.

PRICE ONE CENT.

LAST EDITION WIRES TO STAY.

Judge Andrews's Decision Favors
the Electrical Companies.

Temporary Injunctions Against the
Subway Board Continued.

Only Slight Modifications Until the Case is Finally Tried.

A Check to Mayor Grant in His Vigorous
Crusade Against the Wires.

Judge Andrews's long looked-for decision in
the case of the temporary injunctions obtained
by the Electric Light Companies against the Mayor and Board of Electrical Control was
handed down this morning.

The decision is in favor of the Electric Light
Companies.

Judge Andrews decides that the injunctions
must be continued under certain modifications,
and the duty of the court companies have
practically obtained all they asked for.